VOL. 5. NO. 58 — MONESSEN, PA., FRIDAY, AUGUST 31, 1906. — SIX CENTS THE WEEK

ADJOURNED MEETING OF COUNCIL HELD LAST NIGHT

Ordinances Passed First Reading for About Twenty-Five Thousand Dollars Worth of Street Paving.

An adjourned session of the Monessen council was held last night, and considerable business transacted. In the absence of the regular chairman J. J Cushing was elected pro tem. All members were present except Alcorn. The reading and approval of the minutes of last meeting came first on the list and after the preliminary feature came the regular reports of the committees and officers.

Chairman Johnston of the ordinance committee reported on the street paving and submitted ordinances covering about $25.000 worth of street paving. The sections mentioned were McKee avenue from Oneida to Rostraver streets, also from Sixth to Ninth, Oneida from Schoonmaker to Reed. Fourth from Schoonmaker to McKee. These ordinances were drawn from petitions submitted by abutting property holders declaring their willingness to pay for two-thirds of the paving. The ordinances all passed first reading without a dissenting vote.

Petitions were read asking for several additional lights and the curfew and sidewalk ordinances passed on third reading. An ordinance was read and passed on first reading establishing grades on all streets where paving is proposed.

James Watkins Jr and several members of the Volunter Fire department were present and filed complaints against Chief Beamer and asked that he be permanently suspended and that a new chief be elected and H. J. Bearer be made president of the company. Chairman Cushing instructed the members of the department to file their charges in writing.

The trouble is the outcome of the MacDonald convention. Mr. Knell also a member stated that a financial report of the MacDonald trip would be made in writing at the next meeting of council. Mayor Shutterly made his report in which he stated the results of the suit against the police force and recommended that the borough pay the costs. Council then adjourned until the first Thursday night in September.

REUNION WAS BIG SUCCESS.

The Chalfant reunion which was held at Beechwood park yesterday, brought together about three hundred of the members and friends of the family. Following the dinner which was served in elaborate style, by-gone days were discussed by the older people, while the younger ones amused themselves in a more strenuous manner. Dr. Chalfant of Bellefontaine, O, delivered a very interesting address during the afternoon which added much to the success of the reunion Quite a number of relatives were present from Monessen

Mr. Nash Home.

George Nash arrived home today from Columbus, Ohio, where he went a few days ago to oversee the placing of the machinery display of the Pittsburg Steel company at that place. The company is making exhibits at the principal state fairs this season. From Columbus the machine will be sent to Springfield, Ill.

John Amlong, of Belle Vernon, who was recently accused by a local man of skipping with his watch, was arrested at Monongahela for insulting women. He was fined $25 but couldn't pay up. He was taken to jail at Washington yesterday.

Mr. Fred B. Nicholas, of the firm of W. F. Frederick, was in Pittsburg yesterday to see his brother, Silas, who was taken to the Mercy hospital Tuesday evening. Mr. Nicholas was injured while getting on a train at Sewickley. He slipped under the moving train. His foot and hand were both crushed. The train had pulled out from the station when he attempted to get on. He is getting along as well as can be expected, considering the extent of his injuries.

THE NEW 1000-MILE TICKET

On Sale at Pennsylvania Railroad Offices and Affords a Most Accommodating Form of Transportation.

The general Passenger Department of the Pennsylvania Railroad has supplied the ticket offices of the system with full stocks of the Mileage Books, recently adopted, and they will be sold to travelers on and after September 1.

These books contain coupons entitling the holder to travel one thousand miles over any of the lines of the Pennsylvania Railroad System east of Pittsburg, Erie and Buffalo, inclusive, and the Cumberland Valley Railroad, and are sold at a flat rate of $20. They are valid for use for one year from date of purchase as stamped on cover.

The introduction of this ticket supplies every demand which could exist for a ticket, unhampered by conditions and unrestricted as to personal use, and gives to the frequent traveler over the Pennsylvania System the benefits of a two cent a mile rate.

The advantages of the ticket are obvious and manifold. It may be purchased with the same ease as a card ticket or any other ticket not requiring signature or witness. The name of the holder does not appear upon it and is good for the transportation of any one who presents it, and as many others accompanying him as the mileage limit will include. Any member of a firm or an employe, any official or employe of a corporation, any member of a family or a guest may use the ticket just as if any one of these persons had been the original purchaser. As a matter of fact the holder of the ticket enjoys all of its privileges to the fullest extent of its transportation value The ticket will be accepted for transportation on any part of the Pennsylvania Railroad System east of Pittsburg, including the Cumberland Valley Railroad, for distances exceeding two miles, except in certain specified portions of the territory within the city limits of the larger terminals. It is valid for passage on all passenger trains, including the Limited trains, when accompanied by the necessary extra fare and Pullman charges, with the one exception of the Pennsylvania Special, the eighteen-hour train between New York and Chicago, on which no reduced rate ticket of any kind is valid. The popular features of the new ticket commend it to the consideration of those who travel often. Anyone may buy it, anyone may use it; no identification of the holder is required and the price is the flat rate of two cents per mile.

CHIEF COOPER NOW DYING

His Sister Ella Makes an Appeal to Monessen People on Behalf of Stricken Brother.

An appeal came to Monessen today on behalf of ex-Chief of Police D. W. G. Cooper, who is now dying of consumption at the home of his aged mother, Wind Ridge, Pa. The family is in poor circumstances, the mother of Mr. Cooper being past seventy-three years of age. One daughter who was the only support of the widowed mother, has been called to the bedside of her dying brother and as a result the family is left without an income. Miss Cooper has written several letters to Monessen people asking aid and her appeals which are pathetic in the extreme, follow in part:

"German Beneficial Union:

Dear Sirs: I feel it my duty to write you a few lines concerning my brother's condition. We know he has been dropped from your lodge, but won't you please consider the condition of a fallen brother and lend a helping hand. Here he is, confined to his bed stricken with consumption and we know he cannot be with us but a very short time at best. It is very hard indeed on his poor old widowed mother. She is here to be cared for, besides my brother has his two little boys. Now won't you please help us and we will be ever grateful to you. Miss Ella Cooper,
Wind Ridge, Pa."

This morning several citizens of the town prepared an appeal in behalf of Mr. Cooper and the paper is being passed among the people of the town and those who care to may contribute to a fund that will be raised and promptly sent to Miss Cooper.

THE Washington Observer, a life long Prohibition paper, congratulates itself that during all the years of its existance it never accepted a whiskey ad.

THE man who figures that paving the streets of a city is an extravagant way of spending public money is in wrong. There is no better and more economical way of keeping a town in shape than to pave the streets.

COUNCIL passed a curfew ordinance last night. After ten days it will become a law and people will be required to keep their children off the streets after 9:30 o'clock in the evening. Mayor Shutterly declares he is going to enforce the ordinance to the letter.

THE Altoona Tribune wisely remarks: "The shade trees of a town are among its chief glories. They are also promotive of the health and comfort of the inhabitants. The virtues of the trees are so many and so great that one would suppose the official tree butcher would be ashamed of his dastardly work. But he isn't."

LOVERS' LUCK

By Constance D'Arcy Mackay

Copyright, 1906, by C. H. Sutcliffe

On a bright May morning as Barry O'Gill was crossing the fields by a well worn footpath, balancing a bag of meal on his back, he caught sight of Moira Nolan washing linen in the little river that brawled its way through the village of Ballymoran. The brook gushed and sang over its pebbles, and Moira's young voice sang with it as her white arms flashed in the clear water. She was on her knees, straight and supple as a willow, her bare feet tucked under her with only the rosy heels showing. The wind caught a strand of her hair and whipped it out till it shone like beaten gold in the sun. Barry paused, dazzled, and gazed at her, his mouth agape, his sack of meal forgotten on his back. Presently the girl was aware of his presence and that he was watching her.

"What are ye gaping at at all?" she questioned.

"At the loveliest girl in all Ireland," said Barry, never taking his eyes from her.

"Sorrow be to ye if your mother knew it," laughed Moira, bending to her work again. "And angry she'd be to find ye here. Ye'd best go back to her."

Barry flushed till his cheeks were redder than his hair. "It's here that I'll sthop," he said decidedly, dumping down his sack and seating himself on the grass.

Moira's thrust had been a keen one, for all the village knew that he lived in fear of his mother's tongue. "Shure, it's the sting of a wasp she has entoirely," was the verdict of her neighbors, from whom the Widow O'Gill held somewhat aloof, though now and again she condescended to call on Mrs. Terhune for "a bit of gossip and a dish of tay."

Barry was Mrs. O'Gill's only child and the idol of her heart. Did he so much as look at a girl, Mrs. O'Gill was filled with alarm. So while the other lads lingered about the church steps after mass that they might see their sweethearts, Barry was hurried off homeward by his mother. Therefore it was with a sense of recklessness and novelty that he gave himself up to a talk with Moira. She bade him help her wring the clothes and then laughed at his awkwardness and splashed him with glittering drops. The time went quickly. It was noon before they knew it, and Barry sped home to his dinner and a scolding. Yet he hardly heard the words his mother heaped on him, so engrossed was he with the memory of Moira's gray eyes and the exquisite curve of her lips. Love comes swiftly when one is young in Ballymoran.

He and Moira met often after that, sometimes at the edge of the little river and sometimes on the roads by which the hawthorn hedges bloomed, a mass of pink and green. The more Barry thought of Moira the more he realized that his mother would never consent to his marriage. Moira's beauty was the only dowry the girl had. Of all the poor folk in Ballymoran she was by far the poorest.

Nor was Barry much richer. It was his mother who held the purse strings. Once, in desperation, he thought of giving up Moira, and for three whole days he did not see her. Then quite by accident he met her coming across a field. She was about to pass him with averted face.

"Moira!" he cried brokenly.

At that she turned. She was pale and there were deep shadows under her eyes. All that Barry had kept pent in his heart rushed to his lips, and Moira listened, looking down and plucking at a bit of hawthorn she held in her hand. A lark rose from the long meadow grass near by, and soaring into the air poured out a song that seemed but an echo of the ecstasy that was in their hearts. It was Moira who made the first return to earth.

"Does your mother know of it?" she questioned.

"Divvle a bit," said Barry cheerfully, "and where would be the good o' telling her? She'd never consent to it in the wide worruld. 'Tis a runaway match we'll have to make, mavourneen. We'll be afther taking a thrip to the next parish and back some fine day."

"But where will we live at all, Barry, darlint?" cried Moira, still troubled.

"Rest aisy," said Barry. "I can make somewhat working in the bogs, and that will give us a bite and a sup. And there's owld McSherne's cabin that's been desarted ever since he went to America. Troth, it's a ramshackle place, and there's no denying it! The roof lakes, but I can mend it with fresh turf. And though the room is as small as a nut, what a foine view we'll have from the doorway. And if the chimbley is owld and shmokey, after all 'twill be our own. Arrah trust to luck, Moira, achree! And lovers' luck, shure, it's the best of all!"

"True for ye, Barry," agreed Moira, and, happy and improvident, they drifted back into their lovers' paradise and one morning before the first birds were astir and Ballymoran lay in the cool grayness of the dawn they slipped away to the next parish. By the middle of the afternoon they were back again, and all the village knew of their romance.

Mrs. Terhune hastened to bring the news to Mrs. O'Gill, but the latter pushing forward a chair, did not wait for her to speak.

"Have ye seen aught of my boy Barry?" she demanded. "The day's noon! Gone since morning, and not a bit of work has he done the day, bad cess to him!"

It was a fine opening for Mrs. Terhune and, true on the opposite side of the hearth she told her story. Mrs. O'Gill rocked from time to time with pursed lips and ejaculations. "The curse of all the crows upon him! And so cozy to a corner with a lovely, beautiful soul! May the divil break my heart with his cruel ways! May he niver cross my threshold again! 'Tis a serpint's tooth he is, a serpint's tooth!"

Mrs. Terhune shook her head wisely.

"He is so," she agreed, with relish. "He is so! The most good for nothing lad in the parish and he marrying the poorest girl of it! There's not a boy for miles about but what would have me son-in-law! My children, now, they're the pride of my eyes and well worth, I'm not denying it myself, a pretty penny, but they've such a careful, canny way with them. 'Good for a sou!'"

Mrs. Terhune had gone too far. Beside herself with speechless rage, Mrs. O'Gill reached her feet and stood trembling. Then she turned and fled, her self-control gone. She would see Barry at once and forever. She would not be his undoing. She would—

Mrs. Terhune had risen with a cry of triumph. Mrs. O'Gill was gone. Barry was her own son, blood of her blood, flesh of her flesh, the light of her eyes, the apple of her heart. Her voice rose in a shrill shout about her head.

Mrs. O'Gill, [illegible] gained the street. Her first [illegible] with a pitchfork. "The curse of the crows upon you!" she cried. "Is it yourself that has the impudence to be coming here after my boy Barry, you [illegible]? Get off with you, ye [illegible], or I'll [illegible] with a pitchfork!"

"I will go," said Mrs. O'Gill, her voice softening. "When I was a girl I had bright eyes, too, and the same color of hair. Ah, heaven be with them owld times! 'Tis long since I was young." She turned from them abruptly and went on ahead, leading the way home.

The lovers followed in a happy daze, too overwhelmed to question how such fortune came about. "Did I not tell ye," said the rapturous Barry, "that lovers' luck is the greatest in the worruld?"

It entirely stopped the brick dust sediment, and pain and symptoms of kidney disease disappeared. I'm glad to say that I have never had a return of any of those symptons during the four years that have elapsed and I am evidently cured to stay cured, and heartily recommend Foley's Kidney Cure to any one suffering from kidney or bladder trouble." Couldn't Lift Ten Pounds.

Doan's Kidney Pills Brought Strength and Health to the Sufferer, Making Him Feel Twenty-Five Years Younger.

Sick kidneys cause a weak, lame or aching back, and a weak back makes a weak man. Can't be well and strong until the kidneys are cured. Treat them with Doan's Kidney Pills. Here's the testimony of one man cured.

J. B. CORTON.

J. B. Corton, farmer and lumberman, of Depue, N. C., says "I suffered for years with my back. It was so bad that I could not walk any distance nor even ride in easy buggy. I do not believe I could have raised ten pounds of weight from the ground, the pain was so severe. This was my condition when I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. They quickly relieved me and to-day I am never troubled as I was. My back is strong and I can walk or ride a long distance and feel just as strong as I did twenty-five years ago. I think so much of Doan's Kidney Pills that I have always a supply of the remedy to some of my neighbors and they have also found relief in its use. If you can tell anything in this rambling note that will be of advantage to you, or to any one suffering from kidney trouble, you are at liberty to do so."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mr. Corton will be sent by mail to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Sold by all dealers. PRICE, fifty cents per box.

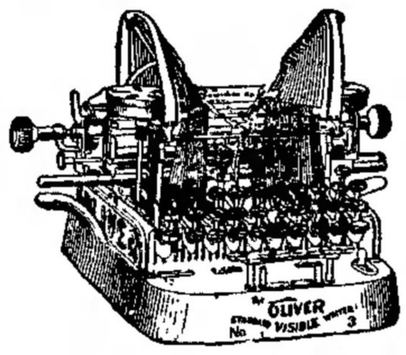
THIS TYPEWRITER
DELIVERS THE GOODS

It's the Oliver—the Standard Visible Writer.

The Oliver Typewriter is just like an athlete stripped for a race



It is free from unnecessary multiplicity of wires and springs

No net work of flimsy keys to get tied into hard knots

The nimble fingered stenographer can put talk into type with this machine just as rapidly as she takes your dictation.

For no matter how swiftly she writes, she can see just what she's doing

The keyboard is so wonderfully responsive to the touch of the finger tips that speed comes without effort.

The factors that make for speed are its visible writing, its light, elastic key-touch, and it's all 'round simplicity. It has the fewest possible wearing points, and it prints with a downward stroke.

The OLIVER Typewriter

THE STANDARD VISIBLE WRITER

is a flawless piece of mechanism, combining the strength of tested steel with the perfect adjustment of the works of a watch. You can use an Oliver a life time and the type will not lose alignment

It never suffers from nervous prostration; requires only a little oil and plenty of exercise to keep it at the highest point of efficiency.

The hum of Oliver Typewriters is heard in the most progressive business houses in the land. Sales increasing at a phenomenal rate. Get acquainted with the Oliver! Write for the Oliver book—we send it free with our compliments.
